Alekhine Defence

Alekhine's Defence is a chess opening which begins with the moves: Black tempts White's pawns forward to form a broad pawn centre, with plans to undermine and attack the white structure later in the spirit of hypermodern defence. White's imposing mass of pawns in the centre often includes pawns on c4, d4, e5, and f4.

Alekhine's Defence - Wikipedia

Alekhine's Defense (B02) 1 e4 Nf6. But Black should take the pawn anyway, since he winds up with the bishop pair and an extra pawn in the center. Of course 2....d5 is also fine, and 2....e5 is a Bishop's Opening.

Chess openings: Alekhine's Defense (B02)

A radical defense, first introduced to master chess by the fourth world champion, Alexander Alekhine. Black immediately attacks the e4 pawn with his knight, tempting White to advance all of his center pawns in the hope that they will prove over-extended. Pros: Original Tricky Less common, so opponents...

The Alekhine Defense is a hypermodern defense against the ever so popular e4 opening from white. Black looks to allow white to chase his knight all over the board with tempo gaining pawn moves that will control the center of the board. In exchange for the center control, black will look to undermine the overextended pawns from white.

Alexander Alekhine - Wikipedia

The Alekhine Defence is a provocative opening. Instead of doing the same as White and establishing a pawn in the centre, Black invites his opponent to chase his knight around the board and set up a broad pawn centre as he wins tempi.

Alekhine Defence - ChessBase

The Alekhine Defence is particularly applicable in encounters against players who are inferior in class, as well as in games with a short time-control. This opening is not used so often in practice, so your opponent might lose plenty of time to recollect the opening theory.
